In The New York Ecening World of June 14th, 1893, it is stated that instead of a deflet there will be a surplus of the pension appropriation for the year ending June 30th, 1894. And why not? For the two weeks ending June 30th, 1895, the Pension Bureau acted upon the application of 1,037 veterans under act of 1890, and allowed 25 and rejected 1,011. What kind of ruling or examination of claims produces this result? Howere 97+ per cent. found unworthy? Will the people believe that 97+ per cent. of the veterans who apply for pensions under the act of 1890 are not entitled to them?
